Stanford and Berkeley Tie—Princeton Out-Points Yale—Harvard Hits Down on Pennsylvania—Games at Other Places.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.) This was the great football day of the year. On Manhattan Field Yale and Princeton, the giants of the gridiron met in the presence of 30,000 spectators inside the fence and 10,000 looking down from the high grounds about and from other points of vantage to contest for America's football supremacy.

The day opened with the temperature like April, but with wet, soggy clouds overshadowing the sky. As the hours passed, however, the sun broke through the posts of Jupiter Pluvius, and promise was for good weather. Belated ticket purchasers had to pay dearly for their dilatoriness in providing the first requisites to entrance to the grounds, and $10 was readily paid, and even $20 and $30 was given up for one of these bascule.

The betting was very decidedly in Yale's favor. Sporting men freely offered 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 on the "Lehigh" and "Yale" to win. The odds of $500 on Yale were numerous with any quantity of smaller ones at $25 to $15. Experts claimed there were no such odds in the history of the game. Princeton had been practicing a number of trials, and it was noticeable that the Princeton men seemed fresher and livelier than Yale's, two of whose men, Butterworth and Thorne, bore the marks of last week's contest with Harvard, and were lame.

Before the time for the game to commence arrived the weather became perfect. The sun shone in a cloudless sky, the air was crisp and invigorating. College men and women, in force, made the welkin ring with college yells and the tooting of tin horns. The crowd cheered the teams as they came onto the grounds. The men lined up as follows:

Yale. Position. Princeton. Greenway.....Right end.....Trenchard. Hinkley.....Right guard.....Taylor. Stillman.....Center.....Ballet. McCrea.....Left Guard.....Wheeler. Murphy.....Left tackle.....Holly. Hinkley.....Left end.....Brown. Adee.....Quarter back.....King. Thorne.....Left half.....Ward. Armstrong.....Right half.....Blake. Butterworth.....Full back.....Blake. Princeton took the ball, and gained, with a flying wedge, twenty yards, when Yale got the ball on a fumble, but was downed without gain.

Butterworth punted thirty yards. Then Princeton got the ball, on which he gained five yards. Yale next got the ball, and gained five yards. Three times in succession. The ball fell on Yale's fifteen-yard line. Yale went through the center five yards. Butterworth punted thirty yards. Hinkley, captain of Yale, was hurt, and left the field, but returned. Princeton gained five yards, and Blake punted thirty yards, and the ball was soon on Princeton's twenty-yard line. Blake punted twenty yards. Yale was given five yards for off-side play; gained five yards more. Princeton then had the ball, and began making short gains. The ball was now near the center of the field. Blake punted thirty yards. Butterworth punted back fifteen, and Princeton gained five yards for off-side play. She gained five more, and then, by a series of small gains, put the ball on Yale's twenty-yard line.

Princeton was playing a great game. She put the ball on the five-yard line, and then on the five-yard line by a flying wedge. The excitement was intense. Other small gains were followed by desperate play. In spite of all Yale's efforts, at 3:15 o'clock, the ball was forced over the line, and a touchdown was scored for Princeton, and goal kicked. Score, 6 to 0, in favor of Princeton.

Yale's ball was now in the center. She forced it down to Princeton's twenty-yard line. Severe blows were hurled. After seeing-sawing back and forth, Princeton got the ball and punted twenty yards, but Yale forced it back fifteen. With the ball near the center, the time was called for the first half. Score: Princeton, 6; Yale, 0.

The second half opened with Yale having the ball near the center. Yale gained twenty yards on a flying wedge. Princeton made five yards, and Blake punted for thirty. Yale's ball was in the center. She gained and lost five yards. Blake punted twenty yards. Yale was given five yards for off-side play. Princeton gained twenty yards around the left end. Morse made a splendid run for thirty yards amid great applause. Princeton made gains through the center. Yale got the ball. Butterworth kicked thirty yards. The ball was again back to center. Princeton made short gains and the ball was put on Yale's fifteen-yard line. The time for the second half expired without either side scoring.

The game was as phenomenal in intensity and brilliancy of struggle as it was surprising in the result. Many moons will shed their lustre before the Yale men will recover their composure after the stupefying shock. Their complete lack of preparation for it made this bolt from the heretofore almost unclouded skies seem like some wrathful visitation for which they are at a loss to account. From the very start of the game it was palpable that Yale was outclassed and outplayed by the modest young giants who went into battle with victory in their eyes.

SUMMARY.
Score: Princeton 6, Yale 0.

Touchdowns—Princeton, 1. Goals—King of Princeton, 1. Referee—Brooks, of Harvard. Umpire—Dashiell, of Lehigh. Time of game—2h. 25m.

CRIMSON GOES.
Harvard Mops Pennsylvania in the Mud of Cambridge.

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.) Crimson is a popular color in the city tonight; in fact any shade of red goes. All Harvard is wildly hilarious, and is growing more so as the evening ages. Harvard brawn triumphed today; dragged down Pennsylvania from its lofty pedestal of pride, mopped it about in Cambridge clay, and then sat upon it. The Harvard boys defeated the team of the University of Pennsylvania by a score of 26 to 4.

a running V. Harvard rallied, and, by pushing a man over the ball down to Pennsylvania's eight-yard line, then to the five-yard, and then to the two-yard line. Pennsylvania, by playing desperately, managed to force Harvard back with a series of brilliant individual plays; then the tide turned, and the ball was forced back to Pennsylvania's ten-yard line. The struggle was desperate, but Harvard gained, yard by yard, and inch by inch. With three downs on Pennsylvania's line, the ball was finally pushed over for a touchdown, and the goal was kicked. Score 6 to 0, in favor of Harvard.

Pennsylvania then took the ball from down field, and finally made a touchdown, but failed to kick goal. The score was 6 to 4 in favor of Harvard. Harvard scored with a running, and Brown made a run for a touchdown, and goal was kicked. Score, 12 to 4, in favor of Harvard.

Harvard secured another touchdown and goal, score, Harvard 18, Pennsylvania 4, and the first half ended on Harvard's ten-yard line.

In the second half Harvard scored two more touchdowns, but did not kick goal from them, and the game ended in their favor. Score, 26 to 4.

ON THE COAST.
Stanford and Berkeley Play a Tie Game—Score 6 to 6.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.) Stanford 6, University of California 6, was the score of the desperately-fought football game this afternoon. A drizzling rain fell over the field, and the spectators sat in the stands and on the bleachers and bawled for their favorites. The grounds had been soaked by five days' rain, and patches of mud and puddles of water were numerous. Scientific play was out of the question, and the players slipped and fell and tumbled in their efforts to get over the ground.

Although the game was not called until 2 o'clock, the crowd started out to the field before 12 o'clock, and when the game started, nearly every seat was filled. Stanford was the favorite in betting, 2 to 1, but the conditions were against them. The California game, the Berkeley men proved to be better mudlarks. Neither side attempted any tricks, and the game was simply a struggle and push, with an occasional attempt at a run around the ends.

During the first half, Stanford played in hard luck. A cold wind was blowing against them, the rain driving in their faces, and they had to work the ball with their hands. The California game, Berkeley also suffered in the loss of Hunt, their star player, who was injured, and was compelled to retire shortly after the game commenced. Smith took his place at the left end. The game commenced with the ball in Stanford's possession.

Stanford got through Berkeley's line, and made forty yards, but Stanford soon lost the ball on downs, and Berkeley, punting it down the field, got it fifty yards. Stanford could not get back the lost ground and Berkeley worked the ball to their opponents' goal, securing a touchdown. The kick was good, and the score stood: University of California, 6; Stanford, 0. Stanford made a desperate effort to score, but the end of the first half came, and Stanford, threatened by Berkeley's left end, they made great gains.

The second half commenced with the ball in Stanford's possession. Stanford and by Walton's great run around the end they got the ball within five yards of Berkeley's goal, but Walton slipped and fell, and Stanford lost the ball. At this juncture, Benson of Berkeley and Code of Stanford were disqualified for fighting, their places being taken by Walter and Harrellson. Stanford was given a free play for rough play, and Foults took his place. Berkeley punted the ball, but Stanford got it, and the game commenced with rushes, worked it to within a foot of their opponents' goal. Here the most desperate struggle of the game ensued, but Stanford failed to score, and the game was tied. During the remainder of the second half, neither side could gain an advantage, and time was called with the ball in the center of the field.

THE DAY ABROAD.
No United Celebration at London—A Banquet at Berlin.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(By Cable and Associated Press.) There was no united celebration of Thanksgiving in this city in the American colony. The United States Embassy and the United States Consulate were closed, but the Stars and Stripes hung from the balcony of the flat where the United States Embassy is located.

AT BERLIN.
BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The most general celebration of Thanksgiving day, outside of the United States, took place at the Haizerhof Hotel this evening. The hotel was bright with American flags, and 300 Americans dined there, under the leadership of United States Ambassador Runyon.

The celebration was on a larger scale than ever before witnessed in Berlin. "Over the top" was a more striking illustration of the power of kindness," said a citizen. "A man drove a grocery wagon up to the house opposite mine this morning and started in to deliver some groceries. He had expected the horse to start, but the horse kept on moving. The man turned around and threw a potato at him, but the horse didn't mind that a bit—he kept right on walking."

"Whoa, there," says the man, but the horse didn't stop at all. In fact, he moved just a little bit faster. But the most remarkable thing about him now was his change in his appearance. You couldn't have told exactly what it was. He wasn't any bigger than he had been nor any smaller. He just seemed to sort of radiate it, but there could be no possible doubt about what it meant; it meant that he was ready and determined, upon the slightest further provocation, to kick the wagon into double-pointed toothpicks and make jam of the contents."

"Whoa, Bill," says the man, in a friendly, kindly tone. Before you knew it the horse had settled into a peaceful attitude, and the man had disappeared within the house."

The B'nai B'rith.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.) One of the most interesting of all foreign exhibits at the Midwinter Exposition will be that contained in the Japanese section. A matter of note is the fact that it covers so wide a field. It will occupy several thousand square feet in the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building, and will have considerable wall space in the fine arts department.

In addition to the exhibit, an arrangement has been made by the Japanese Commissioner-General for an outdoor exhibit, to occupy 10,000 square feet of space, apart from the Japanese village, already in process of construction. This additional bit of Japan will have tea-gardens, concrete exhibits and two of the leading tea-houses of Japan. Everything inside the inclosure will be decorated in true Japanese style.

Intending Oregon exhibitors have decided to expend $5000 in the construction of a State building. This cost the securing also of the Corbett-Mitchell fight, that the government would not object is shown by the dispatch received today:

"Should Corbett-Mitchell fight fall through at Jacksonville I can arrange it here. Notify Brady and Mitchell. (Signed) 'R. C. PATE.'"

As Gov. Mitchell has Florida signs of interfering, it is not impossible that the fight may go to the southern republic.

"WHY THE REPUBLICANS WON."

In order to avail itself of a promised contribution from Gov. McKinley, The Times will be compelled to postpone the publication of the heretofore announced symposium on the political situation, from a Republican standpoint, until Sunday, December 3. This will compel the postponement of the Democratic symposium until Sunday, December 10.

Irrigation Disputes.

While the Wright irrigation act is a beneficial law, the working of which has in the main been satisfactory, there are some abuses which have cropped up under this act which must be remedied as soon as possible, or the law itself will soon come into general disrepute, as it has already in some districts which have suffered from the weak points of the law. The main trouble appears to be that persons who have little or no interest in land or water are permitted to vote on the issue of bonds, and in this manner great injustice is often done, as people who have everything to gain and nothing to lose are always ready to vote for the expenditure of public money, however unreasonable the proposition may be, in the expectation that some of the crumbs may fall to their share.

An example of the evils referred to has cropped up in Colusa county, where a number of farmers in the Central irrigation district are so indignant at the imposition of high taxes for irrigation improvements that they determined to deny in the courts that the district was legally organized, and in the event of their failure some may even resort to violence to prevent being dispossessed of their homes for non-payment of taxes. The rate of taxation in Central district has, by reason of irrigation, been run up to $3 on every $100 of assessable property.

A letter received by the Examiner from Thomas Kelly is indicative of the state of feeling. Mr. Kelly is one of the best-known farmers in the vicinity of Willows, and is the leader of the farmers who are protesting against the taxation. In his letter the gentleman says:

"The selling of men's lands to pay these unlawful taxes for irrigation constitutes the darkest and saddest record of California history. We were sold out last week to pay these outrageous taxes, which were levied by the votes of tramps and whisky-sellers, and not by those of farmers. We mean to protect our homes with shotguns if necessary, and I mean to shoot the first man who tries to take possession of my land."

A resident of Los Angeles, who is interested in the district referred to, says there will certainly be trouble, and possibly bloodshed, if any attempt is made to enforce the taxes for their lands for failure to pay taxes imposed under the irrigation law. They claim that this district was not organized lawfully, and that the bonds were not properly disposed of. For this claim they will make a fight in the courts.
If they win all will be well; but if they lose there will be trouble.

These men are indignant because three-fourths of the lands concerned are naturally unfit for irrigation, being shallow clay, with hard pan close to the surface. Then, too, under the Wright act, residents of the district who owned land at all had the right to vote as to the bonding, and they used that right. The farmers were strongly against the irrigation project, but they were voted down.

On the other hand, the friends of irrigation deny that there was any irregularity in the proceedings, and say that the most prominent farmers in the district favored the scheme. This case, however, is only one of many of a similar character which have arisen under the Wright act, showing, as we have stated, the urgent need of a revision of some portion of that act. A little while ago an attempt was made by the owners of town lots at Fall-brook, in San Diego county, to create an irrigation district there, which would have covered a large area of rough mountain land, upon which water could never have been brought, and which would have resulted, practically, in the confiscation of a large ranch.

Another reason why some provisions of the law should be changed is that these disputes and difficulties between residents of irrigation districts cannot all be created by suspicion and distrust in the minds of capitalists to whom must look for the sale of bonds. It is already no easy matter to dispose of these bonds to advantage, owing to uncertainty as to the legal standing of the law, a decision regarding which is still pending in the Supreme Court. If to this uncertainty we add quarrels within the districts themselves, it will be a very difficult matter indeed to effect the sale of such bonds, among Eastern or European capitalists, who are always inclined to be suspicious of any new enterprise at a distance, of the practical working of which they understand little.

Grover and the turkey have a feeling in common. They both got it in the neck recently.

The Spanish-American Trade.

While great importance is attached by the merchants and statesmen of this country to our trade with Europe, we have been, to a great extent, neglecting the cultivation of commercial relations with the Spanish-American nations of the Western hemisphere, whose business it seems would naturally gravitate to us, provided no obstacles are placed in the way. An attempt is now being made to foster trade relations between the Republic of Mexico and California. A gentleman, representing the California Fruit-growers' Association, is now in Mexico for that purpose, and is said to be meeting with much encouagement. The Mexican government and Mexican merchants declare that they desire to give all possible assistance to this commercial movement, and the railroads have pledged themselves to give reasonable freight rates. There is a vast amount of lucrative business to be done in Mexico, Central and South America.

This business is at present chiefly in the hands of the English and Germans, not because the people of these Spanish-American countries have any special affection for England or Germany, or any prejudice against the United States, but mainly because the merchants of those European countries have closely studied the wants and the methods of business which prevail there, and lay themselves out to meet their customer more than half way. Commerce in these Spanish-American countries is carried on in a very different manner from what is customary in the United States. These people have their own way of doing things. They like to take their time about making a trade, and when the energetic Yankee drummer comes in upon them with a rush, he finds himself out of his element. Then, again, the question of credit is an important one. In these countries goods are generally sold on long time. It is the custom of the country, and it cannot be changed in a day, or in half a dozen years. The European houses understand this, and give long time on the goods they sell, charging in proportion. It makes no difference to them, for they get big interest on their money. Of course, to do this, large capital is required. It is little use for merchants or manufacturers of limited means to endeavor to do business with Spanish-American countries, under present conditions. Another matter of great importance, which is closely studied by European merchants, is the proper method of packing goods for shipment to these countries. Transportation facilities down there are still very imperfect, and goods often have to be carried hundreds of miles, over steep mountain sides, on the backs of mules or llamas.

In order to make this practicable, they must be put up in small packages, which can be conveniently handled, otherwise they must all be repacked, which involves much extra expense.

When these matters are properly understood by our merchants and manufacturers, there is no reason why we should not capture the greater part of the Spanish-American trade. That we can successfully compete with European manufacturers has been amply proved by the popularity which American goods have attained in Asia, wherever they have been given a fair trial. Not only this, but we have been for some time shipping many lines of goods to England and competing with the Britishers on their own ground. We should be able to capture a considerable portion of the trade of the Spanish-American market down there for our canned and dried fruits, also for wines and brandies.
Now, that our fruit-growers are taking up the question of extending the market for their products, it is encouraging to note that they intend to include in their work an attempt to open up the profitable fields which lie so near us on the south.

Electric vs. Horse-cars.

Horse railroads will evidently soon be numbered among the things of the past, along with stage-coaches. On every hand lines of horse-cars are being transformed into electric roads. The latter are not only much more comfortable and speedy, but what is of more importance to the companies, they pay much better. The general manager of the Columbus street car line, a street car line that it cost from 75 to 85 per cent. of the gross receipts to operate by horses, and from 55 to 75 per cent. of the gross receipts to operate by electricity. Mr. Serrell, in an article on "Electric Street Railways as Investments," published in the Engineering Magazine, states that the average operating expenses of horse-car roads for over fifty roads, is 80 per cent., and that a large number of electric roads place the ratio at 50 per cent., but from his own investigation he thinks it will run from 60 per cent. to 65 per cent. John Boyle, largely interested in the Louisville street railways, and in the street railways of Buffalo, N. Y., states as a result of investigation that it will cost in Cincinnati 75 per cent. to operate by horses, and 60 per cent. to operate by electricity. Under these circumstances it cannot be long before a horse-car line in a large city will be regarded in the light of a curiosity.

It seems to have been decided that there shall be an income tax, the only question being as to details. Those of the Ways and Means Committee who do not favor a general income tax are said to be willing to see one imposed on the incomes of corporations, companies holding valuable and exclusive franchises, legacies and inheritances and successions of all kinds, and possibly on all incomes accruing to foreigners and non-residents. This would be far less open to objection than a general income tax. The taxing of large legacies left by very wealthy people has been frequently suggested, and would be a good means of raising money, as it would involve no hardship on the taking of any portion of the superfluous wealth which has been accumulated under the protection of the government which the tax would go to support.

It appears that everything is not yet settled in regard to the Southern Californian exhibit at San Francisco.
There is some friction between the merchants and the Chamber of Commerce, caused chiefly by a speech which was made by a member of the chamber, in which the merchants took exception. As the sentiments of this gentleman are not endorsed by a majority of the chamber, it seems scarcely just to hold that body responsible for them. It is sincerely to be hoped that means may yet be found to unite the opposing elements, and combine on an effective show at the Midwinter Fair which need not conflict with a good display in Los Angeles.

Secretary Herbert, in his annual report, speaks highly of the country's ability to turn out vessels and armor, but holds that the American navy in esse is not what it should be. He says that if the government in the future is to have naval strength enough to command the peace, and be in condition to "enforce the terms dictated by its sense of right and justice," it must have more battle-ships, and must build a reasonable number of torpedo-boats.

If you gave some poor family a turkey yesterday, Thanksgiving day was worth while.

The gobbler struck a race of people yesterday that could gobble him.

Now watch out for the ad valorem liar to get in his work.

An Ingenious Expedient.
(Chicago News.) When Sir Christopher Wren built the Town Hall of London, a fire broke out in the hall corridor, as the story goes, insisted that the roof required further support, and wished that more pillars should be added. Valiantly did Sir Christopher assure him that the supposed danger was imaginary. The alarm became infectious, and the great architect was finally worried into adding the desired columns.

Years rolled on, but in later times, when architect and patrons had passed away, cleaning operations in the roof revealed the fact that the supposed additional supports did not touch the roof by a couple of inches, though this was imperceptible to the gazers below. By this ingenious expedient Wren pacified his critics, while vindicating his own architectural skill to future generations.

A Convenient and Valuable Possession.
(Harper's Weekly.) Without suggesting any narrowing of her present boundaries, it is permissible to recognize that the invasion of a new field of labor by womankind is not a clear gain, even to the invading host. A part of the immediate gain of the woman is the loss of the men, and it is not putting the case too strongly to say that a man is one of the most convenient and valuable possessions that a woman can obtain, and it is doubtful whether she can afford to cheapen him by her competition to such a degree that he will leave her. The danger of acquisition. It is not hard to spoil a good servant by persistently doing his work. The raw material for husbands is liable to the same sort of damage, and far-seeing women will try to shape their conduct so as not to contribute to its degeneration.

THANKSGIVING.

The Day Very Generally Observed.

Union Services at Many of the Churches.

Special Musical Programmes for the Occasion.

The Attendance Uniformly Large—Exercises at the Gospel Union and the Salvation Army Barracks—Other Places.

Yesterday was observed throughout the city as a day of public thanksgiving and praise. Union services were held at many of the churches, and in several instances fine musical programmes were rendered. The attendance was uniformly large.

MUSIC AT ST. JOHN'S.
At St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Adams and Figueroa streets, a particularly interesting musical service was held at 10 a.m. This consisted of a choral service, a grand and full choral celebration of the holy eucharist. Among the musical selections were included Stainer's harvest anthem, "Ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers," Woodward's "Te Deum," in E flat, and Gilbert's adaptation of the Russo-Greek mass, including Kyrie, Credo, Benedictus, Agnus Dei and Gloria in Excelsis.

In the evening a sermon was preached by Rev. John Gray, rector of St. Paul's. The evening music included a special Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, by one of the most noted of English composers, and was followed by repeated, and special hymns were sung.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.
A union service of six churches was held at 11 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, Sixth and Hill streets, the following being included: First Presbyterian, Immanuel Presbyterian, First Congregational, First Baptist, English Lutheran and Temple-street churches. The pastors and congregations of all were represented, and the sermon was preached by Rev. A. C. Smith, of the Temple-street Christian Church. His subject was "Our National and Personal Reasons for Thanksgiving." He treated of the dangers that threaten our country, and regarding these perils as being the restriction of the right of suffrage, limiting it to an educational test, and extending the time of naturalization of foreigners.

The choir sang beautifully, "Oh, Give Thanks Unto the Lord" (Sydenham). "The Lord is my strength and my deliverance" (Beethoven) and a choral response by Troite.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.
Rev. J. W. Campbell preached to his own people, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, a sermon appropriate to the day. His text was Psalm lxviii, 19: "Blessed be the Lord, who daily loatheth us with benefits, even though we be afflicted." The service was exceptionally fine character and a large congregation was in attendance.

ST. PAUL'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.
At 11 o'clock a sermon by the rector, Rev. John Gray, was from the text: "The word of the Lord endureth forever." St. Peter 1, 25. It emphasized the permanent and never-changing influence of the word of God in the civil life of the nation. St. Paul's chapter in the Brotherhood of St. Andrew attended the early communion.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.
Holy communion was celebrated at 10:15 a.m., followed by a brief address by the rector upon the duties of St. Andrew's Brotherhood. The service was appropriate to St. Andrew's day, as well as to Thanksgiving day. At 11 o'clock a sermon was preached by Rev. J. W. Campbell.

BETHANY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
Union services of the churches in the northwestern part of the city were held at 10:30 a.m. at Bethany Presbyterian Church, on Bellevue avenue. The service was beautifully decorated, and well filled. There were present Rev. A. G. McMillan of Union-avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. Mr. Morris of First End Congregational Church, Rev. George C. Edwards of Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, and Rev. Mr. Hendry of Park Congregational Church.

At the Central Methodist Church, on Fifteenth street, a large congregation of united churches, and a fine musical programme, was rendered. The occasion was a Memorial Day service, and the Rev. Mr. Hendry, of the Central Methodist Church, presided. The service was a most interesting one, and the Rev. Mr. Hendry, with a specially arranged musical service, which was very fine.

PICO HEIGHTS SERVICES.
Union services were held yesterday morning at the Pico Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, the sermon being preached by Rev. J. M. Schaefer of the Congregational Church.

BOYLE HEIGHTS SERVICES.
Rev. P. P. Breese officiated at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the union services held at the Presbyterian Church.

SALVATION ARMY MEETING.
The First Methodist Church was filled to overflowing last night, and many left because unable to find standing-room. The occasion was a special service, held under the auspices of the Salvation Army, and conducted by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Montgomery, who were assisted by a large number of "singles" in the army. There was the usual service of song, after which remarks were made by both Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, who were listened to with close attention. Meetings will be conducted by them Sunday afternoon and evening at Music Hall, on South Spring street.

THANKSGIVING DINNERS.

The Day Celebrated at the Various Charitable Institutions.
The Los Angeles Orphans' Home, Atsone and Yale streets, was an interesting place yesterday, 125 little boys and girls giving thanks at midday to the donors of turkey, chickens, bananas, apples, raisins, cakes, and a host of other nice things. It was a happy day for all, and the children desire to send greetings of love to those who were so thoughtful of them.

WILLING WORKERS' DINNER.

At the parlors of the East Los Angeles Baptist Church a pretty Thanksgiving dinner was given yesterday at 12 o'clock, by the Willing Workers, a class of twenty young folks connected with the Sunday school. It was a chrysanthemum dinner, as far as decorations were concerned, and the neat tables were wonderfully attractive.

There were no end of substantial dishes and dainties to grace the board. It was a happy idea of the young folks to wreath with smilax and roses the chairs of honor assigned to their teacher, Miss Maude Gregory, who was unable to be present.

A CHURCH BENEFIT DINNER.
The Ladies' Aid Society of the Union avenue Methodist Episcopal Church gave a Thanksgiving dinner yesterday afternoon, at Rogers' Hall, on Temple street. It was a benefit for the church fund, and nearly one hundred and fifty persons patronized the bountiful board.
There were four tables, handsomely spread and decorated, at which chicken and Thanksgiving accessories were served by the pretty misses of the Epworth League, as waitresses. A goodly sum was realized.

GOSPEL UNION DINNERS.
The Pacific Gospel Union was kept busy yesterday from early morning until late at night, sending out Thanksgiving dinners to the poor. Not only provisions, but clothing and supplies of all kinds were distributed to those in need, and were as follows: A large number of contributions were sent to the Union rooms Wednesday and yesterday for the paying of the bills.

COUNTY HOSPITAL DINNER.
It is to be doubted if a more satisfying bill of fare was served in the city than at the County Hospital at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all of the 135 patients, and was as follows: Beef steak, turkey, cauliflower, chocolate pie, rice pudding, tea, coffee and milk. One hundred pounds of turkey were provided. In addition to this, certain delicacies were contributed and served later in the day. On Wednesday the King's Daughters sent a basketful of choice fruits, and a laden hamper from the city arrived yesterday morning. Even the old folks in the paralytic ward were able to eat, make merry and give thanks over such a dinner. The hospital was a very pleasant place for the day. The patients of whom Grandpa Burchard, who was 103 years old last July, is one—have been combining their ages into a grand total, and find that they can foot up 81 years for the ward.

During the day little Miss Ada Smith, who is a great favorite with the hospital inmates, was away time very pleasantly with recitations.

NEW NOTIONS OUT O' DOORS.

(From Our Regular New York Fashion Correspondent.)
The woman sketched herewith surely has one thing to be thankful for, and that is her pretty Henry II mantlelet, which is at once stylish becoming and comfortable. It is made of green mattessé silk, and cut square in front and back, and edged with black feather trimming. Attached to this is a gathered founce of plain tulle, pinked at the edge. The cape is finished with a small colarlette of green velvet, trimmed with two bands of gold braid, and a Henry II velvet ruching. The hat is a plaited shape, covered with green velvet and trimmed with ostrich plumes. It is edged with gold galloon.

Economy and fashion are peaceably hand in hand, when the latter permits the former to make an outdoor perfect plain of cloth, with only "wings" out over the shoulders, and a belt and a knot at intervals about the edge of the skirt of velvet, satin or other expensive stuff.

Or you may put your whole three yards of rich goods into a cut butterfly collar, and a pair of cuffs, and no more.
The dress is of very good form, too.
Whole gowns, skirts and all, are made with lap seams, such as have been used on outside coats for several seasons.
These lap seams are stitched down heavily, and in the case of colored silks, stitching in contrasting shade is used, while in cloth the stitching must match exactly. Sometimes the widths are folded one on the other, but often a selvage finish is given throughout. Another small thing worth mentioning, is the notion for stone ends attached to the fronts of gowns, straight pieces, wider at the bottom than at the top, that hang from either side in front of a bodice. Except that they give an impression of length, and therefore height, the fashion is not a pretty one, having no visible reason for being. FLORETTE.

A Pious Thought.

(Sunshine.) Little Marjorie is by no means fond of going to church. She talks to sit too still, and "the man" talks some things she cannot yet understand.
"And when you don't understand what the minister means, you must remember that he is talking about good and beautiful things, and you must make up your mind to think of something good yourself."
That day Marjorie was very quiet in church, and her mother praised her for it on the way home.
"I did just as you told me," said the little girl, "I thought of something good."
"What was it, dearie?"
"Apple pie."

THE BRAZILIANS.

Something About the Country and the People.

Not so Bad as Has Been Represented—The Cause of the Present Revolution—Notes from Personal Observation.

Miss Marcia P. Browne of San Paulo, South America, is in the city, and is stopping at the Burke mansion, corner of Second street and Bunker Hill avenue.

Miss Browne is a native of Boston, Mass., which place she left about five years ago. She is now a resident of the city of San Paulo, which is located in the State of the same name, and within the republic of Brazil. The city is about three hundred miles southwest of Rio, the two places being connected by what is commonly known as the Dom Pedro Railway. The city is also about forty miles from Santos, which place is its seaport town.

San Paulo is a town of about one hundred and thirty thousand inhabitants, and in many respects, is situated not unlike Los Angeles. The town has a large "hill district," while a good deal of it is on level land. It is about twenty-five hundred feet above sea level, and has a mild and even temperature all through the year, the rainy season being for a short time in January and February.

Miss Browne occupies the position of director (principal) of a large training-school there, and is also a member of the State Board of Education. The training-school, of which she is principal, is for the preparation of teachers. The country about the city is devoted largely to coffee plantations, although there is a considerable production of sugar-cane. Bananas are raised extensively, but only for local consumption. The city is supplied with an abundance of pure water.

In speaking of an interview with a New York gentleman, some weeks ago, which interview was published extensively through the medium of Associated Press dispatches, Miss Browne said she thought the statements attributed to the gentleman to be misleading. It will be remembered that the article in question was stated to be the result of an interview with a gentleman living in New York, but who had just returned from a long visit to Brazil, where he had large business interests. It was stated in the article that on account of such business interests the man would not consent to have his name used in connection with the publication of the interview.

One of the statements of the gentleman was that he would advise no one to go to Brazil at this time of the year. Miss Browne said that in this she would agree with him. The city of Santos, the seaport of San Paulo, was on a flat strip of land running along the coast, and was so near sea-level that it was very difficult to secure good drainage. Such being the case, and also on account of it being a frostless climate, it was not strange there should be great outbreaks of yellow fever there. The residents were inclined to do all they could to prevent and abate the trouble, and a competent engineer had stated the town could be drained. In fact, the work of preparing for such drainage had already begun.

A number of the other statements attributed to the gentleman, Miss Browne said, she could not agree with, however. As a specimen of the shocking manner in which men afflicted with the disease were treated it had been pointed out that such ones had been put directly into beds from which the bodies of those who had died with it had been taken out. This, of course, was a serious state of affairs, but was no more than was done not many years ago in Memphis, Tenn., when the yellow fever was raging there. When numbers of those afflicted with the disease were outside a hospital lying on stretchers waiting for admission, it was not unreasonable to believe there might not be an opportunity to put on clean sheets for the new comers.

As for the Brazilians being cruel as stated, she said the gentleman was also in error in this particular. She had lived with them for years, and has found them to be a generous and kind hearted people. In fact, they were too kind hearted for their own good.

At the city of San Paulo, which was so much higher than Santos, there was scarcely any yellow fever, except that which is brought there.

As for quarantining against contagious or infectious diseases, they were thorough there, although possibly not as much so as in some other countries.

They were, however, inclined to be progressive, and to act according to the best information they could obtain. As in Los Angeles the "unemployed" is a serious problem with which to deal. A great many of what would here be called tramps, go about the city begging. The climate being mild, they can so a short distance out of town and sleep under the trees which grow abundantly there. They can also steal bananas and other fruits. Strange to say, the tramps from the United States have the reputation of being the meanest and in many respects the most disagreeable ones the residents have to deal with. When asked to work the tramps decline to do so, saying they can make more money begging.

Miss Browne stated that the recent revolution was not so much on account of or caused by the native Brazilians, as by an undesirable class of foreigners who had taken up their abode there.

Such foreigners were the cause of much trouble, and were in many respects not unlike large numbers of the foreigners who are to a greater or less extent a menace to good government in the United States.

A WICKED WOMAN.

How She Scandalized the Good People of Boyle Heights.

The good people of the Boyle Heights Methodist Church have been much worried of late by rumors which got out concerning events said to have transpired at the parsonage on St. Louis street. The place has been vacant since the departure of Rev. Mr. Gillan, there not being sufficient room to accommodate the larger family of the new pastor, Rev. F. E. Breese. As it seemed poor policy to have a furnished house lying idle in these days of house famine, it was decided some time since to rent the place, and a local agent was intrusted with the task of securing a tenant.

He soon found one in the person of a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Charles McMan, and said her husband was an engineer, and secretary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in this city. She paid a small deposit and secured the key, taking possession at once. She did not have the money, she said, to pay a month's rent, as her husband was out on the road, but she promised to have it on the following Wednesday. When the time came, her husband "had been called away hurriedly," and another delay was secured. And so it went for a number of weeks, the church people not being particularly anxious for the money, but truly thankful to have the place occupied. In the meantime stories began to leak out to the effect that all was not as it should be, and it was even said that some high old times were being enacted at the parsonage. Word had been passed out among the young men of a certain class who had but little use for the church itself, but who now seemed to develop a peculiar interest in the house designed as the pastor's abode. Finally the eyes of the brethren were opened by a hack-driver who claimed that the woman whom the deacon knew as Mrs. McMan, but who is also known under the name of Lee, owed him a bill amounting to $8, and as she refused to pay it, he out of pure revenge, gave the snap away. After he had told what he knew, or claimed to know concerning the woman, there remained no reason for doubt, and the only question that remained was how to compel her to vacate.

The pillars of the church were greatly shocked over the prospects of a scandal, and strove to keep the matter quiet, but in spite of their disfigurement, the woman held the fort. In this case the parsonage, at last Councilman Campbell was appealed to, and at his suggestion the police were called upon for assistance. Chief Glass went to see the woman herself, accompanied by an officer, and at once recognized her as a shady character with whom he had had a little trouble before. When informed that she must leave the premises, she made no further objection, but agreed to get out in the morning, which she did.

The trustees have forgiven her the amount of the rent that she owed, but find it hard to forget the indignities she caused to the parsonage. It has been developed since that she owed a number of persons money, having run up bills for groceries, furniture (the staid fittings of the parsonage not being up to her taste) and an organ, the latter, however, never having been delivered.

Heretofore applicants for the position of church tenant will be required to pass a rigid examination, and it is even hinted that the person next securing a lease of the parsonage must give bonds for the strict observance of each and all of the ten commandments.

THE FAIRFIELD DAY

Great Sport at Athletic Park.

The Most Successful Meet Ever Held by the Club.

All of the Principal Events Hotly Contested.

The Largest Crowd Ever Gathered at an Athletic Exhibition. The Audience Treated to Several Surprises.

The fall field day of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, held at Athletic Park yesterday afternoon, was the most successful of the many similar meets heretofore held by this popular organization.

The crowd was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever before gathered together for a similar purpose, and without known exception, all went away well satisfied with the day's sports.

The number of people present is variously estimated at from 1000 to 1500, and the outside of the track was a solid line of vehicles.

The management deserve special credit for the manner in which the programme was carried out; the waits being few and short.

As predicted, there were some surprises in a few of the events, probably the most noticeable being the defeat of Charlie Howard, in the open 100-yard dash, by Hoyt of Long Beach; and the defeat of Howard and Hoyt in the 220-yard dash by James Ryan of the Athletic Club. H. McCrea and C. M. Smith did some very speedy work in the various events, and proved themselves worthy candidates for the championship events later on.

The officers of the day were as follows: Referee, J. S. Thayer; Judges, J. D. Wiley, R. W. Fridham and C. P. Lyndall; timers, G. H. Pike, H. C. F. Smith and W. Cosby; starter, A. J. Way; clerk, G. Beebe; assistants, E. Cook, G. Miller and C. E. Patterson; marshal, S. P. Hensley; announcer, Charles W. Chase; Committee of Arrangements, J. V. Fridham, A. C. Way, C. W. Chase, C. P. Lyndall and John S. Thayer.

MILE BICYCLE FOR NOVICES.

The first event on the card, the mile bicycle for novices, brought out four competitors, viz.: J. H. Voorhees, E. Chenoweth, L. L. Lacy and Fay Stephenson. After several ineffectual attempts on the part of the starter to discharge his pistol, another was borrowed for the occasion, and on 1:20 o'clock the quartette was dispatched on their journey. Stephenson went out in the lead at the first turn, and out the pace at a lively clip, the other three being strung out in the following order: Lacy, Chenoweth and Voorhees. These positions were maintained without change for entire distance, except that Stephenson, after making all the running, increased his lead from Lacy in the last lap, winning the race with ease, and Voorhees took third place from Chenoweth. Time by quarters: 0:35 2-5, 1:25, 2:05 1/2, 2:40 1/2.

HUNDRED-YARD OPEN DASH.

Considerable interest was manifested in the next event, the hundred-yard (open) for which five contestants took the mark. They were: C. V. Howard, Floyd Hoyt, James Ryan, S. H. Jackson and A. Stewart. Owing to his victory over Foster, the Olympic Club champion, on Decoration day, and other brilliant performances, Charlie Howard was considered invincible, and odds were offered on him against the field in vain before the race; but, owing to a bad start, and a little judicious crowding, he was compelled to taste of the bitterness of defeat.

The race: The quartette were sent off to a ragging start, with Ryan, Jackson and Stewart in the lead, but the two last named were soon passed by Hoyt, and Howard, who gave way to the former at once went after Ryan. Half way down the stretch, Hoyt and Ryan were on even terms, and so the race was a close one. 220-YARD BICYCLE RACE.

Only three riders, E. Ulbrecht, T. Q. Hall and C. M. Smith, came out for the next event, the first heat of the mile-bicycle, 220 class. Hall assumed the lead at the start, and gave way to Ulbrecht, who made the pace a hot one for the first lap. On passing the stand for the second time, however, Smith shot to the front, and at his wheel, Ulbrecht dropping back, and this order was maintained to the finish, Smith winning the heat from Hall by a length. Time, by quarters: 0:41 1/2, 1:15 1/2, 1:55 1/2, 2:31 1/2.

In the second heat Phil Kitchin, H. E. McCrea, Fay Stephenson and Tom McAlister were sent off. Kitchin, who was the favorite, took the lead from the start, and McCrea dropped to the rear. Passing the stand for the third time the order was Stephenson, Kitchin, McCrea and McAlister, but Kitchin spurred away from the leader on the last lap, and McCrea went right after him, a very pretty finish, resulting in favor of Kitchin, who beat McCrea out by a yard. Time, by quarters: 0:48 1/2, 1:25 1/2, 2:05 1/2, 2:40 1/2.

LACROSSE MATCH.

Then came the lacrosse match between the Riverside and local teams. Hotly contested game of thirty-five minutes' duration, which resulted in a victory for the Angelinos by three goals to two. The enthusiasm evoked by each individual player during the progress of the game was proof conclusive of its growing popularity among local lovers of outdoor sports, and there is no reason why this national game of the Canadians should not be numbered among the attractions offered for their amusement during the off-season.

THE OPEN BICYCLE RACE.

The sixth event was the first heat of the open mile bicycle for which Emil Ulbrecht of Chicago, L. W. Fox of Riverside and Fay Stephenson turned out. Ulbrecht assumed the lead for the first lap, but resigned in favor of Stephenson, who made the pace for the second and third laps. Fox and Ulbrecht rode wheel to wheel as the trio started their last circuit, but the Riverside spurred past both of his competitors at the bleachers and romped home, apparently an easy winner. It subsequently appearing, however, that he had, in spite of his advantage, cut inside the track about a foot at the upper turn Fox was ruled out of the race, much to his disgust, and the heat went to Ulbrecht. Time, by quarters: 0:43, 1:20, 1:57 1/2, 2:35 1/2.

Phil Kitchin, C. M. Smith and H. E. McCrea were sent away together for the second heat, which proved to be the fastest of the race. At the end of the first lap the order was McCrea, Kitchin and Smith, but so close were they together at the half that it was impossible to decide which was in the lead. Smith, however, went to the front in the third lap, and McCrea dropped to the rear, but in the last lap the Riverside made a beautiful spurt, and passing the other two as though they were standing still, he won with considerable ease, Smith taking second position. Time by quarters: 0:39 1/2, 1:13, 1:51, 2:26.

THE POLE VAULT.

There were four entries for the pole vault. Charles Dole of Riverside, who cleared nine feet, carrying off the palm, the others being Louis Breer and E. Nimmer of the Turners, 8.06, and R. S. Day of Pomona, 8.99.

FINAL OF THE 220 BICYCLE.

The final heat of the 220 class bicycle race brought out C. M. Smith, E. Ulbrecht, T. Q. Hall, Phil Kitchin and H. E. McCrea. At the start Smith and Kitchin were in front, with the others bunched, but the quintette was soon strung out, and the first lap was ridden in the following order: Smith, Ulbrecht, Hall, Kitchin and McCrea. On their second trip, however, Kitchin moved up to the front, and Smith dropped back to third place. McCrea out on a little more steam in the third lap, and at the three-quarters mark was leading at a lively clip, with Kitchin at his wheel. As they passed the bleachers for the last time Smith went after the leaders, and soon passed Kitchin, but was unable to decrease the distance between himself and McCrea, who won as he needed time by quarters: 0:40 1/2, 1:20, 2:01, 2:32.

A MIXED EVENT.

Owing to the length of the programme and the shortness of the time remaining in which to carry it out, the running high jump, which fell to Charles Dole, who cleared 5 feet 1 inch, and the Chinese bicycle race, were disposed of at one and the same time, and as the latter was something of a novelty, little or no interest was manifested in the jumpers. Three Chinese cyclists, in regulation racing costume, spinning around the track in a slight not to be seen every day, and the crowd laughed and shouted themselves hoarse as the strange racers pedaled away for their amusement. The race was won very handsily by Charlie Wong, in the very fair time of 3:02 1/2.

FINAL OF THE MILE OPEN.

The final heat of the open mile bicycle was the most exciting of the day's races, and it would be a difficult matter to imagine a closer finish than that between McCrea and Smith. Fay Stephenson essayed to take the lead at the start, Kitchin, Ulbrecht, Smith and McCrea strung out in the order named for the first lap. The pace was too hot for Stephenson, however, and Kitchin took the lead on the second lap, but at the three-quarters mark McCrea was pedaling wheel to wheel, five lengths ahead of Ulbrecht, and the two others had dropped to the rear. As they raced up the backstretch, McCrea made an effort to shake off his companion, but Smith staid right with him, and a fine struggle ensued to the head of the stretch. McCrea, however, on the inside, gained a yard or so at the turn, and although Smith was not far behind, he was unable to hold his ground. The Riverside just got home, and won the race by the very close margin of six inches. Time, by quarters: 2:35, 1:15, 1:54 1/2, 2:28 1/2.

220-YARD RUN.

The five men who competed for the hundred-yard run, again faced the starter for the 220-yard run, but this race did not arouse very much interest. Kitchin, going as fast as he could, maintained his advantage with ease all the way, Howard beating Hoyt out for second place. Time: 0:24.

CLOSING EVENTS.

The next event, the mile team race, proved to be a mere procession. Fox, the Riverside, riding away from Ulbrecht and Smith, with the greatest ease from the start to finish; time 2:29. The 440-yard run, for which Ryan, Jackson, Harrington and Howard competed, was won easily by the last named in 0:58 1/2, Ryan finishing second. The last event, a two-mile bicycle handicap, attracted considerable attention, and although the scratch men were never in it at any stage of the race, it was by no means an uninteresting race. The competitors were L. W. Fox, C. M. Smith, and E. Ulbrecht, scratch: T. Q. Hall and Phil Kitchin, 150 yards; Fay Stephenson and Tom McAlister, 200 yards; and H. Voorhees, 350 yards. The last named having almost a lap the advantage at the start, sent the lead for the first mile, which he finished in the following order: Voorhees, Kitchin, Stephenson, McAlister, Hall, Ulbrecht, Smith and Fox, and with the exception of the scratch men, it was maintained until the seventh lap, when Voorhees, who had led the race in the last lap, and drawing away from Kitchin, with lots to spare, the quartette was sent off to a ragging start, with Ryan, Jackson and Stewart in the lead, but the two last named were soon passed by Hoyt, and Howard, who gave way to the former at once went after Ryan. Half way down the stretch, Hoyt and Ryan were on even terms, and so the race was a close one.

THROWN OUT.

Mr. and Mrs. Stitt Met with an Accident While Out Driving.

Yesterday afternoon, as J. H. Stitt was out driving with his wife a wheel came off his buggy, throwing the occupants to the pavement. Mrs. Stitt struck her head, and received serious bruises, but her husband escaped without injury. The accident occurred on Broadway, below Second street.

THE HIGH DIVER AT WESTLAKE.

The delightful sunshine and balmy atmosphere aided not a little in bringing a large crowd to Westlake Park yesterday afternoon. The high diver, who was expected, a little after 3 o'clock he appeared on the tower, and for about twenty minutes kept the crowd in a state of expectancy. He finally jumped and struck the water apparently just as he intended to. He appeared almost instantly, and swam to the boathouse without assistance.

DEPOSITOR'S KICK.

He Did Not Think His Savings Bank Treated Him Properly.

B. F. Field writes The Times as follows: "During the financial flurry, several months ago, there was much said and written in ridicule of the depositor who withdrew his money from his bank, and, since that time, the banks have been accorded a great deal of sympathy.

"Knowing a game of bluff when I meet with it, and believing that the truth can injure no honest man or corporation, I respectfully submit the following facts to the readers of The Times:

"On May 25 last, I deposited $500 with a savings bank of this city, my intention being to leave the money with them for about two months. On June 21, learning that the bank was withdrawing the six months' notice for withdrawal, I went to the institution and left my written notice, as a simple business proposition, to the effect that I was willing to let the bank pay off my depositors on demand. I presented my book, and asked for my $500 and 5 per cent. interest per annum. I was informed that no interest would be paid. I requested an explanation, and was told that my notice of withdrawal did not fall due at the right time of the year; but that, if I had given my notice, say eleven days later, so that it would have fallen due in January, during a dividend period, I would receive my principal and interest all right. My only alternative was to accept my $500 without any interest at all for the six months, or to leave the sum with the bank until July, 1894. I asked why, as this rule did not appear in my book, I was not informed of the fact, when I gave my notice of withdrawal. The answer was that the bank did not do business in that way. I asked if a feeling of spite entered into the transaction, and if the bank felt ugly because I had asked for my money on six months' time. I was told that, to a certain extent, such was the case that many notices of withdrawal were filed on the day that I filed my notice. I then informed the bank that I, too, felt at least an inclination toward using the same plan, and that I was not at all upset, and I was compelled to wait six months for my money. Not being in a position to leave the deposit where it was, I withdrew it, and performed, made the savings bank of the use of $500 for six months' time.

"Let us have government, postal savings' banks, with deposit offices, where the people can leave their savings and get them again, with a stated interest, upon a few days' notice."

WHAT THE BANK PEOPLE SAY.

A Times reporter called on the officers of the bank at which the transaction took place, and from the cashier learned their side of the case. The cashier stated that Mr. Field made a term deposit, that is, the money was to remain with the bank for six months, and for which he was to get 5 per cent. interest, as against 3 per cent which is paid on an ordinary deposit, that is, one which can be drawn out at any time. He said that this fact was fully understood by Mr. Field at the time he made his deposit. In regard to the forfeiture of the interest, the cashier said that on term deposits the interest was computed but twice a year, the first of January and the first of July, and that if deposits were made after the first period and withdrawn before the second, the depositor forfeited his interest. This, he said, was the general rule among savings banks, and Mr. Field was treated no more harshly than other depositors.

In answer to the question as to whether there was any spitework in the matter, the cashier promptly denied that such was the case, and stated that the bank was strictly in accordance with their rules and by-laws, and no personal feeling entered into the matter.

When asked whether the cashier understood by the public that interest on term deposits was forfeited unless the money was in the bank at the time of the second payment of interest, the cashier said he did not know, but it was the rule in his bank to always inform depositors of this rule, and he was sure that Mr. Field was fully informed of the fact. He further said that in ordinary times the rules were not so stringently enforced as they might be, as the banks are always ready to make concessions, but when money was tight, as in the case of the recent panic, the banks, for their own protection, took advantage of the fact that they were allowed to by their rules and the law.

Mrs. Woodworth, the Evangelist.

Mrs. M. B. Woodworth, the evangelist, accompanied by two excellent singers, have pitched their tent at the corner of Eighth and Hope streets. They are here laboring in the cause of religion. All are earnestly invited, especially Christians, to come out and help in the great work of helping the churches.

SHE IS A GOOD PRINCESS.

Another Good Story About the Cleverness of the Smart Wife of the Prince of Wales.

The Princess of Wales is back again in her English home. She never spent a more enjoyable visit than this last to Fredensborg. Much of her time was spent in reading and water-color painting, and she was particularly pleased with her sister, the Empress of Russia, and her two daughters, the Princesses Victoria and Maude. The Princess is never so happy as when quietly occupied, and can turn her hand to anything.

A friend visiting at a cottage on the Sandringham estate last Christmas, there found an old portrait of the Princess in the fact that the Princess had just paid her a visit. The good dame was knitting a stocking.

"Ah," said the Princess, "you can't do the heel as fast as I can," and, taking the stocking from the woman's hands, she there and then knitted her last heel possible.

The stocking has since remained in statu quo, and treasured in a drawer with the needles, just as the Princess left them. Besides her many other accomplishments, the Princess can cut out a gown to perfection, and can even give her Paris dressmaker valuable hints.

After the Mavericks.

(Arizona Republican.) Capt. McIntyre of the Salvation Army explains that the work of the army in Phoenix will not conflict with that of the churches. He is only after those souls which are out of the reach of the church, in which respect Capt. McIntyre's operations are like those of a Mr. Maverick of Texas who has been so fortunate as to contribute a word to the English language. Just before a rodeo Mr. Maverick who had some interest in the herd expressed a willingness to content himself with the possession of all unbranded cattle. At the close of the round-up, Mr. Maverick's herd was larger than that of any of his neighbors. We are willing to bet that Capt. McIntyre should have all the "mavericks," and we think the churches ought not only not object, but assist in the round-up.

VICTORIA'S SIMPLE LIFE.

How England's Queen Passes the Time at Her Secluded Retreat.

If Queen Victoria were the wife of some middle-class gentleman in comfortable circumstances her life could not be simpler. At 8 o'clock she is awakened by one of her four maids, who sleeps in an anteroom adjoining her royal mistress's bed chamber. The very fact of her being so pushed aside to admit the daylight, and on a little table drawn up to the bedside the Queen has all her letters (which she opens with a plain ivory knife, which is a relic of her girlhood) and a cup of tea or coffee. Breakfast at 9:30 is in pleasant weather, served in a small pavilion containing four rooms, all upholstered in very ugly tartans, designed by the Queen herself. This summer house is on the lawn, at a little distance from the castle, but Her Majesty goes to it in a loose dressing gown, belted with ribbons, and a crown of pearls, and none but members of the royal family ever join her in this simple meal. During the repast the head piper plays various spirited tunes on his bagpipe about a quarter of a mile away; for, though the Queen is fond of the instrument, she believes that the sound lends enchantment to the sound. At 11 the royal lady goes out, dressed in black, for her morning airing, in a species of bath chair, drawn by a pony and led by Francis Clark, John Brown's successor and cousin who, of course, displays his stalwart proportions in kilts. Once a week the chair is drawn down to the churchyard, and the Queen inspects the grave of the faithful and departed John Brown. The village, too, is often visited, and Her Majesty thinks no shame of herself purchasing serges and flannels to distribute among the poor at the one little shop kept by Mrs. Symons.

At 12:30 she returns to the castle, refreshes herself with an egg beaten in milk, and is then ready to see Henry Ponsonby, her private secretary, and the Minister in attendance. Luncheon is the Queen's favorite meal, and she is then pleased to converse in a lively fashion, discussing the news of the day and often showing a fund of amusing anecdotes. In the afternoon she again drives out and often stops for tea at some cottage on the estate, where a groom is specially reserved for such emergencies. Humble friends of the Queen are visited, and sometimes she is pleased to use her sketching materials. After her return an hour is devoted to the little grandchildren, and there is an interval of rest before the 9 o'clock dinner, after which Her Majesty, though she is such an early riser, usually spends two hours or more with her private secretary.

Francis Clark, by the way, is of the same type as his cousin, John Brown, but, although he is deservedly loved by his mistress, he would not venture upon the liberties his predecessor was privileged to take. Some funny authentic anecdotes were told me by a friend of the faithful Brown. One day, during his time, the Queen was preparing to sketch near Glassalt Shiel, where she had spent the previous night. Even the Queen sometimes "gets out of bed on the wrong side," and this happened to be such a morning. One table after another was brought from the Shiel until the supply was exhausted and the servants plunged in despair, but yet none suited her fretful Majesty. At last John Brown took one of the rejected tables and set it down rather hard and with much decision before his mistress. "They canna mak' one for ye," he said. The Queen could not laugh; the table was accepted and amiability restored. Sometimes Her Majesty would appear ready for her drive in some comfortable old cloak of fur from prepossessing appearance, but of this descent from royal dignity the servant severely disapproved. "And what kind of a thing is that you've got on the day?" he would grimly say, and the good-natured sovereign would usually dress to please her attendant on the next occasion of the kind.

The Indian Empire is represented in the royal household by Her Majesty's Indian Secretary, and her personal attendant, a very handsome Asiatic, who is always gorgeously appareled in scarlet, white and gold. And these men have their servants and their own suite of apartments in the castle, where the fragrance of curry is said never to be absent. The Queen is very good to her servants and takes great interest in their personal welfare. And of course, the happiness of her humble subjects helps to make her happiness. But I wonder how many women would be contented with the dull and humdrum life led during the larger portion of the year by England's Queen.

QUEER LUCK.

A Man Who Backed His Wife's Namesake and Won.

Beriah Wilkins tells Kate Field's Washington of a curious case of luck which once attended him at the racetrack. The story embodies a pretty little bit of sentiment in connection with the name of the horse he backed—an animal he had never seen and whose merits were altogether unknown to him. On his arrival at the track Mr. Wilkins was met by a friend who, in the course of conversation, mentioned that he had just wagered on an unknown horse because it was called by his wife's name, Emma. "That's my wife's name," said Mr. Wilkins, "I will over the affair, and the two, laughing over the bet, walked off arm in arm across the quarter-stretch. On the way they were accosted by a third friend, who, inquiring the cause of their jollity, was told the reason. By a singular coincidence the name of the friend's wife was the same, and he at once joined in the scheme to bet on the horse, which up to that time not one of the three men had ever heard of. When the betting opened odds on the unknown had been placed to the fullest limit, and the two stood together watching with breathless interest the fate of their romantic venture. As the horses neared the judges' stand there was a general cry of astonishment, for a neck ahead of all the favorites, a perfectly unknown horse, Emma, dashed in the winner.

Bugless Sleeping-Car Berths.

(New York World.) Sleeping-car berths may not be as sweet smelling as a light sleeper could wish, but they are clean and absolutely free from vermin. This is due to the simplest kind of care—vigorous use of the whisk broom. After every journey, the car is thrown open, the bedding is taken out on the platform, blankets are given a shake and two, and the mattress and pillows are thoroughly brushed. Then the upper and lower berths are whisked and the woodwork is polished. This habit of dislodging the dust is the secret of clean beds. As everybody is aware, the linen is changed every night. There is only one porter to a car, and it would surprise a prying housekeeper to see the rapid way that a sleeping-car is put in trim for the next trip. Car carpets, instead of being tacked to the floor, are fitted like a chair cover, and secured with brass pins. It is but a small task to unbutton the carpet, pull it out into the train yard and beat and brush it clean. Car cleaners have great contempt for the broom, the consumption of whisks being at least 60 per cent. greater. There should be a hint for overburdened servants and housewives in all this.

VERY MYSTERIOUS.

Sensational Aspects of Lida Perkins's Disappearance.

A New Theory Advanced in the Way of a Rumor—No Trace Found of the Missing Girl by the Searching Parties.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Lida Perkins of Lankershim, an account of which was published by The Times on Wednesday, appears to have deepened. The matter took a different phase yesterday when it was rumored that a relative of the girl, had used a considerable amount of money belonging to her, and the report went so far as to hint that the people in the vicinity of Lankershim had grave doubts as to the manner of Miss Perkins's disappearance. Searching parties have been scouring the country in quest of the missing girl, but without success, and the matter is the sensation of the San Fernando Valley.

It was said that at the time of her disappearance, Miss Perkins was stopping with some friends at Big Tejonka. On Monday morning she was missed, and those who went to look for her found tracks leading down to the bank of the river and coming out on the other side. The supposition was advanced that she had, in a fit of mental aberration, wandered off into the mountains and got lost.

ARIMITAS WAS CRAZY.

He Makes an Unprovoked Attack on James Taylor.

James Taylor, an old man employed in an upstream drygoods store, was struck yesterday over the head with a cane, in the hands of a wild-eyed individual named Jose Arimitas, and quite severely cut. Mr. Taylor was on his way to lunch when Arimitas rushed up to him, seized his cane, and struck him several blows suddenly over the head, breaking the cane in two several pieces. Arimitas was arrested, and Mr. Taylor was taken to the receiving hospital for medical treatment. Arimitas is supposed to be insane. He imagined that Taylor was a person who had swindled him out of some money, and gave that reason for making the attack.

A SMALL FIRE.

Spontaneous Combustion Causes a Blaze in a Basement.

Shortly after 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officer Bates, who is stationed at the Second and Spring-street crossings, saw smoke issuing from the basement of the Kan-Koo store. He at once rang in an alarm from box 31, and in less than five minutes the fire department arrived. The blaze was found to have originated in a heap of debris and paper in the basement, presumably by spontaneous combustion, as no one but a plumber had been down there during the day.

Chemical engine No. 1, put out the flames, before much damage was done. The proprietors of the store place their loss at $1500.

ORANGE, LEMON AND OLIVE LAND, And Orange and Lemon Trees on Five and Ten Years' Time.

This land is located at Monteville, and Redlands, and includes water piped to each ten-acre tract. Mentone lands grow the finest fruit, of nearly all kinds, grown in the world. Some of this winter's orange crop is already sold at $3.50 per box, and some sold last spring at $4 per box from trees planted only four years. Choice pieces can still be bought for $250 to $300 per acre, and plant the land at $50 per acre. Will only require one-third cash down, balance in very equal annual payments. Have very choice land one mile from center of Redlands, only $100 cash payment down and no further payment for ten years, at 6% per cent. interest. I have the sale of three choice groves at Monteville, four at Crafston and six at Redlands, all in bearing, at prices ranging from $50 to $1000 per acre, according to age and location.

If you want pure water, pure air, good train service on two railroads, good society, cheap ice, electric lights in your house as cheap as tallow candles, go to Monteville, where a case of malaria, rheumatism, asthma or throat trouble is never seen, except in print. We are now the sole owners of the Maze in San Francisco, the best known department store on the Pacific Coast. We are indebted to our associates in a sum exceeding $60,000, and to pay them off have concluded to sacrifice our Christmas business. We will throw our whole stock of merchandise on the market at tempting prices; and it is the best stock of general merchandise in the State. We have lost over $100,000 in the last two years in converting the stocks of every department under our roof from the medium to the best, and we are still able to hold our heads up, look our fellow-citizens squarely in the eye, pay our creditors 100 cents on the $1, and give the public the best value their money ever brought.
